REICHSTAG HURLS DEFIANCE AT JEWS IN STIRRING MEET

Hitler, in Spirited Speech, Asserts Memel "Theft" Was Legalized by Geneva; Swastika Adopted as Nation's Sole Flag.

LITHUANIA SCORED FOR HOSTILE ACTS

German Citizenship, Under Legislators' Action, Is Restricted to Members of Germanic Race.

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler's reichstag, stung by the criticism of a New York magazine against the nazi emblem, tonight pronounced the swastika as the reich's sole flag, hurled defiance to Jews throughout the world and limited German citizenship to members of the Germanic race.

The specially summoned lawmakers acted after their fuhrer, in a fiery mood, had opened the reichstag session with a bitter attack on Lithuanians for their alleged treatment of Germans in the Memel territory, and had called upon the solons to approve three new laws.

Der Fuhrer and his legislators permitted Jews to continue as German subjects, but forbade them to fly any flag save the blue and white Zionist emblem.

Hitler and the reichstag also forbade inter-marriage between Aryans and non-Aryans and provided for punishment for sexual relations between the two.

They also forbade Jews to engage Aryan domestic servants under the age of 45 years.

Lithuania Accused.

Hitler charged Lithuania with responsibility for events in Memel which he said, contained the seeds of trouble. Then he made known his refusal to allow Germany to be drawn into any international controversy in which she was not directly involved.

Expressing his contempt for communism, he voiced his appreciation of the United States government's regrets for the Bremen-Brodsky incident in New York. But he used it as an example of how Jewry, even in high places, allegedly fights against the nazi state.

(Magistrate Lewis Brodsky, in New York, dismissed five men arrested when the swastika was ripped from the prow of the German liner Bremen at a Manhattan dock last month, commenting that "in the minds" of the defendants and others the nazi emblem was a "pirate flag".)

The reichsfuhrer threatened in his

Former Russian Ace Sets New Air Mark

DETROIT, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Major Alexander P. De Seversky, former Russian ace, drove his 710-horsepower amphibian plane to a new world record in a flying tour of the north today. He was clocked at 230.03 miles an hour over the three-kilometer course. His fastest lap was made at 235.34 miles an hour.

The official record was set at 191 miles an hour, held by Lieutenant E. G. Stone, of the United States coast guard.

De Seversky's record was announced from a check of stop-watches.

The flight was made under perfect weather conditions, with a slight breeze blowing across the course. At the completion of the dash the flyer said his motor was functioning perfectly but that he did not have his ship's speed. He said he expected to attain a speed of five to ten miles an hour faster than the mark he established today.

13 Balloons Take to Air In Gordon Bennett Race

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 15.—The daring aerialists of Europe and the United States shot skyward today to start the 23rd Gordon Bennett international balloon race.

With the American entry, U. S. Navy, in second place, the great bags drifted east by northeast toward the Baltic states and Russia before a wind estimated at 45 miles an hour.

The Belgian entry, Bruxelles, took off at 3:30 p. m. (9:30 a. m. Atlanta time). Fifty minutes later the American balloon, glistening in a brilliant sun, soared aloft. There were 13 entries from many nations. The last entry was cut loose at 5:20 p. m. (11:20 a. m., Atlanta time).

President Moscicki, of Poland, with other dignitaries, saw the balloons off.

Lieutenant Raymond F. Tyler, the U. S. Navy's pilot, and Lieutenant Howard P. Orylle, his navigator, carried two baskets of food, including eggs, fruit and a bottle of cognac.

Last year's race was won by Z. Burzaski and J. Zakrzewski, of Poland with a 750-mile flight to a point near Riazan, Russia. Orylle, who teamed with Lieutenant Charles H. Kendall, finished sixth.

The weather was excellent, but rain was predicted during the night with fair weather tomorrow. All the racers ascended smoothly.

SOLONS WILL ASK CURB ON SPENDING

King, Hill Assert Budget Must Be Brought in Line With Expenses.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP)—New demands for a slash in next year's federal spending came today from two members of congress who help figure out taxes to pay the bills.

Senator King, democrat, Utah, ranking majority member of the senate finance committee, was pessimistic over prospects for a reduction. Representative Hill, democrat, Washington, chairman of the ways and means subcommittee which wrote the recent tax bill, was more hopeful.

Both agreed with Chairman Buchanan, democrat, Texas, of the house appropriations committee, that the budget should be brought into closer balance with expenses.

"I agree with Mr. Buchanan," said King, "but we are still on a spending spree, and when we meet in January, there are going to be all kinds of demands for spending—the bonus, the Bankhead farm tenant bill, and others to exceed even the outlay of last session."

King, however, insisted there is "quite a sentiment" among members of the congress to "get down to a more economical basis." He added: "The fact that the President is putting the emergency bureau under the budget would indicate a drawing in of horns. I think the tendency now is to trim down."

King said he thought Secretary Morgenthau was too optimistic in his recent announcement that current expenditures so far are well within the budget estimate of Mr. Roosevelt.

"And I only wish the economy parade were larger," King added, "and I regret exceedingly that there is not a stronger sentiment in favor of reducing all governmental expenditures."

"When we are spending about one-third of every dollar earned for federal, state and local government, it would seem there would be a taxpayers' strike and demands of officials for a reduction."

There has been too much borrowing by states and all, and the way they have been getting money from that $2,000,000,000 and this $4,000,000,000 (PWA and works relief funds) has been encouragement for them to spend."

King, who has voted against many appropriation bills because of what he felt were unjustifiably large advances for government undertakings, said he was going to fight next session for reduced taxes and appropriations.

Bells, Whistles and Sirens Urged To Call Atlantans to Bond Polls

Councilman White Will Ask Council To Back Noise-Making Vote Summons; Employers' Co-Operation Sought; Five Major Rallies To Be Held Tonight.

Bells, whistles, automobile horns and sirens Wednesday will call Atlantans to the polls for vote ratification of the proposed $1,775,000 bond issue if city council today approves a resolution to be offered by Councilman John A. White, fourth ward.

White will ask council to call on every industry, every motorist, and every owner of a noise producer to join in a city-wide demonstration at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, two hours before the closing of the polls, to call those "voters who have not yet cast their ballots to a performance of their patriotic duty—namely to vote for bonds and provide a $9,000,000 improvement program for schools and sewers."

The White proposal came yesterday as bond campaign leaders, supported by business, civic, commercial and political heads in Atlanta prepared for a two-day whirlwind climax to one of the most unique campaigns ever conducted in Atlanta.

Marion R. Miles, manager of the Atlanta Audit Company, yesterday urged employers to arrange for employees to visit the polls during working hours in order that a full expression may be secured on the bond proposals.

"It appears to me that such a move would stimulate voting and would be an additional assurance of bond approval," Miles added.

Previously Miles had urged approval of the bonds as "the most economic investment every offered the citizens and taxpayers of Atlanta."

G. Everett Millican, bond campaign chairman, yesterday pointed to the unusual drive in saying that never before has Atlanta been asked to vote only $1,775,000 worth of municipal bonds for which it would receive benefits valued at $9,000,000.

Bond Debt Low.

"At the present time, our bonded indebtedness is $12,500,000," Millican asserted. "We payed or will pay for every dime of the expense incurred from those issues. We voted the bonds, and rightfully so for needed public improvements."

"On Wednesday, the electorate is asked to vote on this new issue, for

LONG BODYGUARDS V.F.W. CONVENTION CALLED FOR QUIZ

Widening Rift in Political Lines Augurs Show-down During Week.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 15.—(AP)—The unfinished official story of the assassination of Senator Huey P. Long, Louisiana's political dictator, was told today for presentation to a coroner's jury.

District Attorney John Fred Odom, in charge of the investigation, announced that through a long list of witnesses called to testify tomorrow at a three-day inquest into the death of Long's assassin, he hoped to unfold facts about the senator's killing.

The assassin, Dr. Carl Austin Weiss Jr., 30-year-old Baton Rouge specialist, was shot to death by Long's bodyguards a moment after the physician fired a bullet into Long's abdomen in a corridor of the state house here last Sunday night.

Odom said those who saw the state house shooting, who attempted to prevent it and the bodyguards who filled the assassin's body with slugs were among witnesses he wanted to hear.

From them Odom said he hoped to reconstruct the story of the shooting and possibly find a motive for it.

Dr. Weiss' quiet life and his only passive interest in politics have so far baffled those who sought to find a reason for the killing.

Some of Long's closest followers have charged there was a plot to kill the senator and that Dr. Weiss drew the "short straw" in a lottery to select the executioner. This, said Odom, will be investigated thoroughly.

Dr. Weiss' parents and his wife have declared a law passed by the legislature even while Long was dying, which would "gerrymander" his father-in-law out of his judgeship, was not the motive for the slaying.

The widow has scouted the charge there was a political plot and said the gun that killed Long was an "out-law" model and that if there had been a plot the killer would have been sure of his weapon.

Members of the Weiss family planned to offer their testimony in an effort to prove there was no conspiracy to remove the senator and his associates from the political scene.

Meanwhile, the formerly compact Long organization was showing signs of disintegration.

Agile Burglars Take Varied Loot; Loss Over Week-End Tops $500

Agile burglars who showed marked capabilities for reaching around corners and taking apart carpentry obtained loot early yesterday morning which amounted to $180.50 in cash, jewelry valued at more than $415, two chairs and a fountain pen, value unstated.

H. Stevens, of 770 Cooper street, S. W., reported the loss of the pants, through his bedroom window. He had $150 in cash in the pockets.

Mrs. A. E. Sanders, of 887 Peachtree street, N. E., lost $80 in cash, jewelry valued at $415, and an unestimated sum in fraternal jewelry when burglars cut the screen of the front room in which she slept, unlatched the front door, and entered the room.

R. L. Wade reported perhaps the greatest insult of the series of burglaries. Somebody entered his motor company offices, at 399 Spring street, N. E., and used one of his drills to open the safe, stealing $25. They also ransacked the office.

Mrs. E. B. Shadix, 166 Peachtree place, N. W., reported that somebody unlatched her front door by reaching through a broken pane of glass. Whoever it was wanted only furniture. They walked off with two chairs she valued at $14 without arousing her.

H. M. Payne reported that burglars tore a panel from the front window of his grocery at 124 Elliott street, S. W., and stocked up with $20 worth of groceries and cigars.

Burglars tore out the ventilator fan over the door of Newman's Laundry, 471 Ponce de Leon avenue, and obtained $100 in cash and a $10 fountain pen from the office, L. A. Gaultney reported to police.

MEXICAN FLYER KILLED IN JUMP

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Sub-Lieutenant Carlos Paulillas fell to his death at the military airport today when he attempted a double parachute jump during Independence Day ceremonies. Thirty thousand persons saw the tragedy.

SIX SAILINGS SET TOTAL OF TROOPS AT 164 THOUSAND

Rome Growing Uneasy Lest a Frontier Incident Precipitate War Before End of Rainy Season.

ROME, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Italy's fledgling action today to her cabinet's cry of "no compromise" and sped nearly 14,000 more blackshirts toward east Africa on six ships—a record single day's embarkation.

An intensive week of war preparations began with 12,000 men of the Asietta and Cossiria divisions sailing from Genoa on the Sannio, the Italia, the Aquileia and the Calabria.

The steamer Quirinale and Atlanta left Naples crammed with 82 officers and 1,664 blackshirts.

Today's sailings brought the total of troops sent to east Africa on regular transports to 164,000, while 30,000 workmen and about 15,000 troops have embarked on coastal ships and tramp steamers carrying war materials.

Developments Impending.

In Rome's political and diplomatic circles it was believed the week would see decisive developments in the Ethiopian situation. These observers were certain the League of Nations' committee of five would report at Geneva with its compromise solution of the quarrel, and they were just as sure that if the committee reports before Wednesday the Italian cabinet, called into session on that day, would reject it unless it contains an unexpected provision for Italian military control over Emperor Haile Selassie's nation. The cabinet, meeting yesterday, refused in advance any "compromise solution."

There was a growing uneasiness here that some serious frontier incident might precipitate momentous events before the end of the Ethiopian mobilization plans and which is generally supposed to be the signal for the beginning of hostilities.

Today's newspapers were full of Ethiopian mobilization plans and told of the concentration of Ethiopian

NEGRO WOMAN FACES ARSON, THEFT CHARGES

A 24-year-old negro woman faces charges of attempting to set fire to her family's home and burglary. The arson charge was discovered when she was arrested yesterday on burglary charges.

She is Florence Alexander, 24. She lives in the rear of 895 Oak street.

She is charged with stealing a suit, a hat and four pairs of trousers from the home of Roy Lawrence, also colored, who lives back of 759 Oak street. When officers arrested her yesterday they found her mother had preferred arson charges, declaring that on Saturday night the woman set fire to a bed sheet and papers underneath the house after threatening to "burn everybody up."

JAP CHIEF SEEKS VETS' FRIENDSHIP

Admiral and Delegation To Attend Convention of V. F. W.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Admiral Isami Takahashi, a former Japanese "sparring partner" of the late Theodore Roosevelt, as head of a delegation from the Japanese ex-servicemen's association to the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said in an interview here today "the purpose of our visit is to foster friendly relations between Japan and the United States."

"Irritating problems have arisen between our two countries in the past," the admiral said through an interpreter, "but when these problems are considered from the high viewpoint of world peace, they seem minor indeed. If the United States and Japan shake hands, a great contribution will be made toward this goal."

Asked for his opinion on the Italo-Ethiopian situation, Admiral Takahashi said he "personally disliked the attitude of Italy and was entirely sympathetic toward Ethiopia."

"Japan's hands are full with her own problems in the east," he said, "and she has no desire to be burdened with this problem. If Great Britain and France act powerfully and positively, war in Africa can be prevented. The two nations fight in their efforts to prevent conflict, the future of Europe will be in confusion."

Among the many reports circulating in Geneva tonight were:

"That a movement exists among some delegates to have the assembly send a small delegation to Mussolini to tell him how the League is united against any aggression, and to appeal to him to accept a compromise."

"That some of Mussolini's cabinet members are opposed to his present stand and the king himself is alarmed."

"That some powers are planning to ask their ambassadors to leave Rome 'on holiday' if war comes."

No confirmation of the latter two rumors could be found despite the fact they were widely circulated.

Hull Speech Marked.

Delegates to the all-important League assembly attached a growing importance to the American plan to avert a war. They said the call for peace by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, following as it did upon the Anglo-French pledge to uphold the League covenant, would tend to strengthen the moral opinion of the world against any war.

That the Hull appeal has produced a profound impression, particularly among Latin American delegates, was evident during the reception given today in observance of Mexico's national holiday by Dr. R. Marti-Gomez, whose country tomorrow—its term expiring—ceases to be a member of the League council.

The guests, headed by Enrique Ruiz Guzman, of Argentina, president of the council, and Salvador D. Madariaga, of Spain, chairman of the League's Italo-Ethiopian committee, discussed the crisis as well as the Hull statement in informal conversations.

Most newspapers were quick today in calling attention to the imposing demonstration of fidelity to the League covenant as a living instrument made by most of the nations in addresses to the League assembly during the last week.

General discussions by the assembly will close tomorrow with an address by Ramon De Valera, president of the League.

Lloyds Offers 15-1 Odds Britain Won't Enter War

LONDON, Sept. 15.—(UP)—The latest odds offered by Lloyds against Great Britain becoming involved in war were quoted at 15 to 1 today, and its premium against outbreak of war within three months was 7 to 12 per cent.

Odds against Italy's becoming involved in war with any other major power were 20 to 1; against Japan and Russia declaring war on each other, 20 to 1; against war involving Canada or Australia and any other major power, 50 to 1; the United States against any other major power, 100 to 1.

No rate was quoted on an Italo-Ethiopian war, which unofficially is regarded as an odds on bet.

ARMY PUSHES WORK ON FLORIDA SHIP CANAL

Project Proposed 100 Years Ago Seems Likely To Become Actuality.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(UP)—Construction of the Atlantic-Gulf ship canal across Florida, which has been alternately opposed and advocated for more than 100 years, is being pushed vigorously by the United States army engineers, and will be completed within five years, high ranking army officers asserted tonight.

More than 1,000 men already are employed in actual construction work and the peak of approximately 7,000 men will be reached in less than four months, they said.

North Florida and southern Georgia first proposed the canal more than 100 years ago, and President Andrew Jackson is said to have recognized the economic value of such a waterway, and used his influence to "sell" it to southern Florida, where opposition was and still is strongest.

Two main reasons are given for the belief that the canal will be rushed to completion, now that work has begun.

1. The growing need for projects of a lasting nature to provide work for large numbers of men, in order that the administration may be able to keep its promise to end direct relief this fall.

2. The urgent need of a safe passage from the Atlantic ocean to the Gulf of Mexico, a need that was brought home forcibly in the recent storm, when the liner Dixie was driven aground on the treacherous Florida keys.

An additional reason is the fact that the canal has been placed in charge of army engineers, Somervell never has started to build it, but he did finish his superiors say.

Thirteen different surveys have been made and 13 different routes for the canal have been proposed. The army recommended the present route, but proposed a lock canal, costing around $175,000,000. A special board, composed of private and corps engineers and IWA officials, went over the entire project again and decided that a sea-level waterway would be more practical and less costly.

LEAGUE 'PEACE' OFFER SAID EXPECTED TODAY

slovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania—came reports that if Mussolini sends hostilities, some nations will immediately extend material help to Ethiopia, especially through the lifting of arms embargo.

That a movement exists among some delegates to have the assembly send a small delegation to Mussolini to tell him how the League is united against any aggression, and to appeal to him to accept a compromise.

That some of Mussolini's cabinet members are opposed to his present stand and the king himself is alarmed.

That some powers are planning to ask their ambassadors to leave Rome "on holiday" if war comes.

No confirmation of the latter two rumors could be found despite the fact they were widely circulated.

Hull Speech Marked.

Delegates to the all-important League assembly attached a growing importance to the American plan to avert a war. They said the call for peace by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, following as it did upon the Anglo-French pledge to uphold the League covenant, would tend to strengthen the moral opinion of the world against any war.

That the Hull appeal has produced a profound impression, particularly among Latin American delegates, was evident during the reception given today in observance of Mexico's national holiday by Dr. R. Marti-Gomez, whose country tomorrow—its term expiring—ceases to be a member of the League council.

The guests, headed by Enrique Ruiz Guzman, of Argentina, president of the council, and Salvador D. Madariaga, of Spain, chairman of the League's Italo-Ethiopian committee, discussed the crisis as well as the Hull statement in informal conversations.

Most newspapers were quick today in calling attention to the imposing demonstration of fidelity to the League covenant as a living instrument made by most of the nations in addresses to the League assembly during the last week.

General discussions by the assembly will close tomorrow with an address by Ramon De Valera, president of the League.

Lloyds Offers 15-1 Odds Britain Won't Enter War

LONDON, Sept. 15.—(UP)—The latest odds offered by Lloyds against Great Britain becoming involved in war were quoted at 15 to 1 today, and its premium against outbreak of war within three months was 7 to 12 per cent.

Odds against Italy's becoming involved in war with any other major power were 20 to 1; against Japan and Russia declaring war on each other, 20 to 1; against war involving Canada or Australia and any other major power, 50 to 1; the United States against any other major power, 100 to 1.

No rate was quoted on an Italo-Ethiopian war, which unofficially is regarded as an odds on bet.

Lithuania Pledges Fight to Death In Defense of Memel's Autonomy

Tiny Nation's Only Port Threatened by Relentless Propaganda, President Charges; Nazis Apply Pressure by Barring Imports.

PALANGA, Lithuania, Sept. 15.—(AP)—President Antanas Smetona, in the first interview he has granted in six years, declared to the Associated Press that Lithuania, relying to the utmost on the legality and justice of her stand in the action in Memel affairs, is ready at any time to defend her position before the permanent Court of International Justice.

But, should this effort be made to disregard legality and justice, in favor of force, Lithuania is prepared, stated President Smetona, to "defend Memel with all the means at her command."

The determination back of this statement is apparent in word and gesture in conversation with Lithuanian leader who has, in Memel and Vilna, two international problems out of all seeming proportion to the size and strength of Lithuania.

Imports Stopped.

He regarded as Lithuania's chief problem in Memel today the action of Germany in practically stopping all imports from Lithuania with "relentless economic pressure" and what he termed the "relentless influence of foreign propaganda" for much of the apparent confusion.

The Memel citizen, confronted by the propaganda forces of a large and powerful nation, cannot help but be bewildered. What constitutes a minority opinion in such circumstances becomes a difficult question to answer.

"The Memel general elections will take place on September 20 and the government of the republic guarantees that they will take place in full liberty as they have in the past. Unfortunately, factors which do not belong to the government have been long since leading towards illegal action with the purpose of influencing the will of the Memel population."

These factors will increase their activity as the date of the elections approaches.

Changes which the government might eventually consider necessary in the present election procedure would, without any doubt, be made in full conformity with the Memel statute.

To President Smetona the policy of his country as regards Memel is, he indicated, a simple, direct one: That of reliance, as far as possible, on international rules by which we are bound.

Memel Only Port.

"Memel territory is not large," states the soft-spoken, bearded, scholarly appearing man, first president of Lithuania and president again since 1926, "but it is an economic necessity, not a political issue. We are too small a nation to engage in political bargaining, as we are too small a country to engage in a small count against a great power."

Our only port is that Memel, containing Lithuania's only seaport, is an essential part of Lithuania. And the freedom and preservation of Lithuania is to be people a precious thing."

Under the circumstances, Memel has been given the title of "danger zone" in European affairs, President Smetona can only, he declares, plead Lithuania's fervent desire for peace.

Denial of Irish Free State.

The assembly then will fill three vacancies. Poland probably will be re-elected. It is expected Ecuador and Rumania will be chosen to succeed Mexico and Czechoslovakia.

The Japanese delegation, headed by Admiral Takeshita, brought greetings from 3,000,000 Japanese war veterans. Others in the party, who sailed from Yokohama August 22, are Lieutenant General Haruhiko Ninomiya, Captain Hiroshi Nakamura, J. N. Second Lieutenant Paymaster Moichiro Fujita, K. J. A.

Following the encampment the Japanese will tour the country before returning to Japan.

HOOVER TO BE SPEAKER AT SAN DIEGO TUESDAY

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover, speaking on the "bill of rights," will deliver the principal address here Tuesday in observance of Constitution Day at the San Diego exposition.

Mr. Hoover will speak in the Spreckels organ amphitheater in what is expected to be one of his most important public utterances since leaving the White House.

The speech will be broadcast on a nation-wide radio network (Columbia) starting at 11 a. m. Pacific standard time (2 p. m. eastern standard time).

Relief Interests Honored.

"On the attitude as regards Memel, let me say, has not changed. The Memel convention is for us actual, and we believe, firmly, we are carrying out, both in spirit and letter, the terms of the Memel statute, and the Hague decision of 1932. German interests in Memel are not being disregarded. The Memel statute has been observed, and will continue to be observed, but it will be observed integrally, including the parts which guarantee the rights of the sovereignty of the state."

Whether the autonomous self-government of Memel, granted under pressure of immediate post-war conditions, is a question, on the other hand, which interests President Smetona greatly.

Memel statute must be considered as a whole and its normal functioning while it is observed integrally. The statute can only function well if the factors which were not provided for in the convention of Memel cease to intervene unjustifiably in Memel affairs. If this is observed, I see no incompatibility between the principles of the Memel statute and the present-day political conditions of Europe."

In the Vilna matter, although equally enigmatic in his expressed desire for friendly relations with Poland, President Smetona foresees no change in the Lithuanian viewpoint. "But here again," declared the president, "Lithuania is engaged in a small country which can rely only on patient adherence to what it considers right." In stating this, however, the president underlined Lithuania would consider with the closest attention every suggestion destined to bring about an amelioration in Lithuanian-Polish relations, provided these suggestions took into account the "rights of Lithuania and her national honor."

TO PACKERS FACE TRIAL TODAY ON PRICE COUNT

U. S. Charges Major Units Combined To Control Retail Sales.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Charged with combining to control retail prices from 1927 to 1933, 10 major packing companies will be called upon tomorrow in answer to Secretary Wallace.

Officials said these final oral arguments on accusations Wallace made in 1934 had no connection with current high prices or with the tremendous increase in retail meat prices since 1933. But they hinted that the recent burden on the housewife's budget might be discussed.

The defendants are:

Armour & Company, Chicago; Abraham Brothers Packing Company, Tennessee; Cudahy Packing Company, Jacob Dold Packing Company, John Morrell & Company, Memphis Packing Company, Swift & Company, Wilson & Company, Morris and Company, and St. Louis Independent Packing Company.

JAMES E. EDWARDS' RITES THIS MORNING

Former Congressman Was Once, in Name, Nation's Largest Land Owner.

Funeral services for James E. Edwards, widely known Atlanta auditor, for the last four years associated with Brandon-Bond-Condol, and a former member of congress, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at the Church of the Immaculate Conception with the Rev. Father Joseph E. Moylan officiating.

A native of Pennsylvania, Edwards had had a colorful career. At one time he was listed on the official records in Washington, D. C., as the largest landowner in the United States.

He served in congress from the Allegheny district of Pennsylvania, being the first democrat to have been elected from that district. He became, in name, the nation's largest landowner following his terms in congress, when he was chosen by an English syndicate to purchase investment lands. He represented the British capitalists for many years.

Coming to Atlanta at the start of the World War, he was sent by the state government to a middle Georgia county to straighten out a tax muddle. It was said that while there he was

Huey Long--Barnum of Ballot Boxes

Louisiana's Dictator Was Called Greatest Showman in Politics

(This is the last in a series)

By the Associated Press.

Huey Long was killed "in action" assassinated on his own political battlefield as he pushed through legislation to bulwark his incredible dictatorship over the state of Louisiana. There were state bosses before Huey Long, but none held such powers. He turned Louisiana into as near an absolute monarchy as is possible on the soil of the United States. He dominated every public function except the church and the press. And he was only 42 years old when he died.

Ironically, his last great acquisition of state power came on Independence day this year when he had his puppet legislature pass laws giving him control of motion pictures through a board of censors and placed under his jurisdiction all school teachers and every other non-elective employee of the state, parishes and municipalities.

Held Purse Strings.

He gained absolute control of state funds through the Board of Liquidation. He controlled the collection of municipal taxes. The purse strings were in Huey's hands. The patronage was his to dispense.

After Huey's Fourth of July drive, the anti-Long organization in New Orleans, headed by Mayor T. Semmes Wamsley, was hamstrung. Only the "Square Deal Association" remained to threaten him. And at the rate Long was traveling when a bullet stopped him, the threat was not a significant one.

"Louisiana—I'm it," was Huey Long's version of Louis XIV's "L'etat c'est moi."

It has been said that compulsion—not leadership—was the keystone of Huey's political structure. He had henchmen and lieutenants, but he ran the show himself, shuttling back and forth between Washington and Baton Rouge.

When the legislature was in session, Huey mingled with the law-makers, yelling, joking, back-slapping. He had no business there, technically, nor in the committee rooms where he explained in unvarnished English what he wanted done. But Huey Long was not squeamish about ignoring technicalities.

Put In Own Successor. Long had no secret formula for acquiring power. He used the stock methods, but he had more persistence, ambition, physical stamina and mental alertness than his fellow bosses. He was conceded to be the greatest showman in American politics—the Barnum of the ballot-boxes.

The cornerstone of his dictatorship probably was laid when, in March, 1931, he declined to take his seat in the United States senate until he had put a successor in the governorship. After a typical Huey Long frame in which the militia was summoned to keep an unfriendly lieutenant-governor from assuming office, Huey saw his old friend O. K. Allen elected governor.

Through Allen, who still is governor, Long ran Louisiana.

He was loved and feared, charged with nearly every variety of political and social impropriety, credited with building good roads, decreasing Louisiana's illiteracy, shifting the tax burden off the "little fellow," improving the schools.

He was an American phenomenon.

of splitting into conservative and liberal factions. Wade O. Martin, public service commissioner, and Speaker Allen Ellender, of the house of representatives, were heading the conservative group.

On the other side were Lieutenant Governor James A. Noe, James J. Noe, John B. Fournet, of the Louisiana supreme court. Some of the former close associates of Long oppose a move to run his younger brother, Earl Long, for lieutenant-governor in the next election and favor the elimination of the Long name, a repeal of some of the Long-inspired dictatorial laws and a turn away from an all-ruling power.

Others wished to hold to the Long tradition of politics.

The showdown between the opposing forces is expected this week.

WALSLEY CONFIDENT F. D. R. IS FRIENDLY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Mayor T. Semmes Wamsley told reporters this afternoon he had "no doubt that Mr. Roosevelt and the administration will help those who have been friendly to him in Louisiana."

As he boarded an airplane to return to New Orleans after a 24-hour stay in the capital, Wamsley reiterated his denial, however, that his trip here had a political import.

HUEY'S DEATH WON'T HALT U. S. TAX PROBES.

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—(AP)—The death of Senator Huey P. Long, Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., said here today, would have no effect on the government's investigation of alleged tax evasion by Louisiana politicians.

Interviewed as he stepped ashore for a few minutes from the Italian liner Conte Grande en route from New York to Portugal and Spain, the treasury head asserted: "We don't start any tax cases for political purposes and we don't stop them for the same reason."

HENRY TAWBRIDGE, 83, DIES AT MIAMI HOME

He had been active in church work in Atlanta, having been a deacon of the Tabernacle Baptist church and for many years custodian of the church.

Surviving are a son, Kenneth Tawbridge, Atlanta; three nieces, Mrs. Willie Miller, McCormack, S. C., and Mrs. H. A. Fife and Mrs. Jud Ambrose, of Atlanta, and two nephews, Charles Kirk, Nashville, and James Miller, Atlanta.

Will Avoid Sanctions.

At the same time Italian correspondents at Geneva gave their readers to understand there is a possibility sanctions will be definitely avoided.

Il Messaggero says: "The word 'sanctions' begins to pass out of fashion at Geneva and perhaps only a few days will go by before we won't hear it spoken any more."

The fascist party secretary, Achille Starace, began today a nationwide convocation of fascist federal secretaries, divided into three groups, the first of which was summoned to meet at Bari. The meetings are designed to prepare for a vast one-day fascist mobilization to be held soon.

Italy is also preparing on the mainland against any emergency. Further indication of the extent of this preparation is given by the announcement that the provincial administration in Rome had made plans for the construction of anti-aircraft refuges in the basements of buildings now under construction.

NEW SETUP TO HANDLE LABOR COMPLAINTS

Three-Man Regional Agencies in 21 Cities Announced Under Wagner Act.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP)—A system of three-man regional agencies in 21 cities to handle labor complaints under the Wagner act was announced today by the new National Labor Relations Board.

The new setup divides regional labor boards as courts of original jurisdiction in handling collective bargaining cases.

Outlining its plans for procedure in cases charging violations of the act, intended to guarantee labor's right to bargain collectively with employers, the board said the regional agencies will consist of a director, trial examiner and an attorney. Regional directors already serving will continue in the new setup.

The offices will be maintained in Boston, New York, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Atlanta, New Orleans, Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Fort Worth, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Indianapolis and Buffalo.

After an employee or a union files a violation complaint, the regional director is to investigate. If he finds the complaint justified, he is to make a formal complaint in the name of the board. The trial examiner then is to take testimony, with the regional director acting as the hearing.

Frank E. Coffey, regional director in Atlanta, said last night that he has not yet made his recommendations for appointments to Washington. He added that the new setup will mean an increase in personnel at the regional office, 23 Citizens' & Southern building.

NOISE-MAKING URGED TO BRING OUT VOTERS

Improvements even more badly needed than some of those which the voters approved in the past.

"But the unique feature of this issue is that instead of having to pay full face value for what we get, the federal government has come to our assistance, and has agreed that if we will authorize the $17,750,000 issue, we will get improvements totaling nearly $9,000,000—the monetary equivalent of two-thirds of the entire outstanding bonded indebtedness of the municipality.

Golden Opportunity. "Has Atlanta ever had such a golden opportunity in the past, in which such an opportunity ever come again?

"Whether we approve of the enormous federal expenditures or not, they are going to be made. The question is whether we are going to benefit by those expenditures or whether we are going to refuse them, allow the large sums already assigned for Atlanta improvements to be diverted elsewhere and at the same time pay our share of the federal taxes.

Economic Folly. "It would be economic folly to refuse to approve these bonds, in my opinion, and I do not believe that Atlantans are going to stand in the way of their own best interests.

Sons of English Rotarians Here for Five-Day Visit

Georgia Rotarians greet four sons of English Rotarians as they arrived yesterday for a five-day visit to Atlanta. From left to right are Thomas Dixon Green, of Harwood, Skipton, Alex. Fallegant, of Albany, Ga.; Westmoreland; Denis Davis, of Wembley, Middlesex; John Arthur Ford Ennals, of Victoria Terrace, Walsall, and Joel Chandler Harris Jr. Staff photo by Turner Hiers.

000 bond issue will provide, the total bonded indebtedness of the city would be raised to $23,800,000, the total maximum bonded debt which the city could issue, according to estimates of competent engineers.

"I have no doubt as to the outcome of the balloting Wednesday. The only danger is that there is such a unanimity of thought among voters that they will be apathetic and will not take the trouble to vote.

"It is the patriotic duty of every registered voter to cast his ballot Wednesday for the best interests of himself and his neighbors. That means a vote for the bonds. Do not procrastinate. Vote."

Hulet Supports Issue. Major Ben T. Hulet, member of the Georgia Public Service Commission and for eight years a member of the Atlanta city council, yesterday joined the growing list of public-spirited Atlantans urging ratification of the bonds.

"I wish to concur in everything that has been said in advocacy of the city bond issue," Hulet said yesterday. "and if my endorsement is worth anything as a past member of the city council and as a past member of the board of directors, I wish to state that I am in full accord and hope that the citizens of Atlanta will turn out and cast their ballots on next Wednesday, September 18, for bonds."

"The amount that will go to the public schools of Atlanta will be of untold advantage to our children in that they may be given better facilities at the various schools that are now greatly over-crowded."

Criminal Defeat. R. J. Freeman, of 12 Waltham street, N. E., also joined bond forces yesterday. Freeman issued a statement calling for ratification, saying that "it would be next to criminal to allow this cause to go down in defeat."

C. S. Cox, president of Cox brothers, negro undertakers, also issued a lengthy statement to the negro voters of Atlanta urging them to cast their ballots for the issue.

Five major rallies in behalf of bonds are planned for 8 o'clock to-night as follows:

Second ward, Georgia avenue school, Third ward, Grant park and W. F. Slaton school.

Fifth ward, Kingsberry school, under the direction of former Mayor Pro Tem J. Allen Comer, who is the fifth ward chairman of the men's committee sponsoring bond ratification, and Mrs. George Pierce, woman's chairman for the ward.

Ninth Ward Rally. Ninth ward, Bass Junior High school, at which Mayor Key, Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company, Mrs. Arthur N. Anderson, president of the board of lady visitors of the Atlanta board of education, will speak. The meeting was arranged by the ninth ward committee, of which former Congressman W. Paul Carpenter is chairman, and a group composed of Walter G. Cooper, George Fauss, J. D. Callaway, Charles Purnell and Councilman Howard Haire.

Tenth ward, Sylvan Hills school, where the Tenth Ward Civic League will hold a bond drive. The league, of which former Congressman W. Paul Carpenter is chairman, and a group composed of Walter G. Cooper, George Fauss, J. D. Callaway, Charles Purnell and Councilman Howard Haire.

Text of Cox appeal to negro voters follows:

"It is not often that I write a letter of this nature, but I feel that in this particular case of stating bonds for schools and the sewerage system that a few words on my part would not be amiss as a citizen and taxpayer. I therefore wish to impress upon our group the urgent necessity for registering for the coming election so that we may vote for schools and enlargement of the sewerage system."

"For schools because our group is more than any other in need of more schoolrooms to relieve the crowded conditions and with reference to sewers, storm water in several localities overflow, traffic slowed up and basements are filled for lack of larger or more sewers to carry off the large volume of storm water. This I know is especially true on Auburn avenue, where my business is located. This is also true in several other localities, but health conditions are the most important."

"What is good for the white citizen is undoubtedly good for the colored citizen. All will be benefited in many ways. Let every colored citizen not only register, but vote for bonds in the coming election."

J. Henson Tatum, city clerk and registrar, yesterday pointed out that the Philadelphia mayor and council brought down the Liberty Bell and there were representatives on the grounds from Mexico, Central America, Brazil, Argentina, Chili and Venezuela, with fine exhibits from several European countries.

That fair was the first great exposition to give the negroes an exhibit. The negro exhibit was a great success and in presenting it to the directors on the opening day Booker T. Washington made a national reputation.

Out of that enterprise Atlanta got a quickly mobilized defense force which, with the aid of the army, armored trains, "annihilated" them.

The sky army dropped from squadrons of big transport airplanes, each of which carried 30 jumpers. Gripping their rifles and submachine guns, the soldiers leaped one after another, pulled their ripcords and floated slowly to land. Once on the ground they freed themselves from their parachutes, which they abandoned on the field.

The landing was effected in daylight and the aid of the army cameras. One of the pictures showed 358 jumpers in the air at once.

War Commissar Voroshilov and the military missions of France, Italy and Czechoslovakia witnessed the operations.

GENERAL BUTLER QUIET ON VARIETY OF TOPICS

Feels Complimented on Selection to Huey Long's Mythical Cabinet.

Major General Smedley D. Butler, United States marine corps, retired, was not very loquacious yesterday.

The general, in Atlanta en route to the V. F. W. convention at New Orleans, said he felt complimented about his selection as secretary of war in the late Senator Huey P. Long's mythical cabinet.

"I feel that was the highest compliment that could have been paid me," the general said.

There were a couple of topics the general felt were none of the United States business and, therefore, improper topics for him to express himself upon. These included the Italo-Ethiopian situation and Secretary of State Hull's recent note and statement to the soviet government about activities within the United States.

"I don't want to talk about Ethiopia. I don't want to know anything about it. If we get to talking about it, we'll get to taking sides. It's none of our business," the general said.

"I won't talk about Secretary Hull's notes. That's dragging in something we have no business in," he said.

He would, and did, talk about the veterans who were victims of the Florida hurricane.

"I'm not interested in who made the order sending them down there—I'm interested in who approved it. You know, those fellows were army lobbyists. They've got plenty more lobbyists around Washington. Why didn't they send a few of them down there?"

The general was changing from the Southern to the Atlanta & West Point railroad to continue his journey. He was in a hurry, and his train was late, but he liked Atlanta because Mrs. Butler was Miss Ethel Peters, of Calhoun, Ga. And his title now, he said, is Smedley D. Butler, gentleman farmer.

GERMANY'S REICHSTAG DEFIES WORLD'S JEWS

brief but vivid speech to enact even more stringent laws if today's legislation fails to solve the Jewish problem.

Two of the three laws he decreed dealt with the Jewish question; the third honored the swastika as the national emblem.

Memel Situation. In a speech that lasted but 12 minutes, the reichsfuehrer told his specially-summoned lawmakers in apparent reference to both the Ethiopian and Memel questions that Germany would take no position on "any question which does not directly affect us," but "we look with interest to Lithuania."

"Memel, which was stolen from Germany and legalized by the League of Nations, has for years tortured Germans only because they are members of the German nation and because they wanted to remain Germans," he declared.

"They are treated worse than criminals in other countries just because they are Germans."

Tremendous applause greeted his statement. The German dictator, opening the reichstag shortly after 9 o'clock to-night, plunged immediately into foreign questions. He said he desired to make a short statement before introducing several laws at the close of the reichstag convention scheduled to end tomorrow with Army Day.

Memel Issue. Of the Memel question he asserted: "Protests in Khatina of signatory powers were without results. The German government looked upon all this with deep regret. We hope some day these assurances will not assume forms which might be regretted by the whole world.

"Preparations for coming elections constitute a breach of the treaty. Lithuania must be admonished with all possible means to hold to these treaties."

Hitler then went into the subject of communism and the alleged effects of the recent communist international congress at Moscow.

"The insult to the German flag in the United States for which the United States apologized in dignified form shows how far the international Jewish agitation has progressed."

He referred to the tearing down of the swastika from the liner Bremen in New York harbor last month.

Propaganda Charged. Turning to anti-Jewish occurrences in Germany, Hitler told the legislators they grew out of the impatience of the German people because German Jewry, encouraged by international propaganda, believed it could stage similar protests in Germany.

In order to react to the German relation between the German people and the Jews the government will try to bring about legal regulations. The law, which will be read by Goering (General Hermann Wilhelm Goering, president of the reichstag), constitutes only an attempt at legal regulations.

"However, should this not work out we'll have to take it up once again."

With this the reichsfuehrer turned the meeting over to Goering, saying he would read three decrees.

He said by the first two "German flag will be given due honor and the second will be about Jews." The third he left undefined.

Before his references to Memel Hitler said: "We do not wish the international press to pull Germany into any of its speculations. Sometimes it is said we will start a war with France, at other times that we are going to attack Austria, then again that we'll start a war with Russia. But I don't know where."

"The German government," he said, "does not see fit to conclude friendship agreements with every country which puts out its hands. However, the German government makes its decisions not against anyone, for it can take decisions only which can be brought into consonance with the conscience of the German people."

Goering, beginning to read out the three new laws, spoke first of the "debt of gratitude which the (nazi) movement owes to its symbol (the swastika)."

This was greeted with such a storm of cheering that the rest of his announcement was drowned out.

German government looked upon all this with deep regret. We hope some day these assurances will not assume forms which might be regretted by the whole world.

OIL HEIR DISAPPEARS PENDING HOEY INQUEST

Young Rogers Vanishes
With Mother; Evidence Grows Singer Killed Self.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 15. (AP)—Henry H. Rogers III, at liberty under bond in the death of Evelyn Hoey, New York showgirl, vanished from a South Mountain resort near Reading and apparently found no seclusion today.

The son of the late Standard Oil multi-millionaire and his companion, William J. Kelley, a free lance cameraman, who were in the lonely Rogers country home when a pistol bullet killed the Broadway musical comedy singer, furnished $2,500 bail each for appearance at the inquest.

Rogers' presence at a Wernersville hotel was discovered yesterday. Accompanied by his mother he left for an automobile ride in the afternoon. Subsequently a chauffeur called at the hotel for the party's luggage and said he would return late in the week.

Attorneys and Chester county officials were uncertain about the date for the inquest. Deputy Coroner Harvey Cox, of West Chester, said it will be held Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Rogers' counsel, had announced it would be held Wednesday or Friday to suit the deputy coroner's convenience.

Counsel for the two young men prepared for their appearance, buoyed by mounting evidence. Miss Hoey committed suicide. Statements of Rogers' employes and Bettillon findings supported the suicide theory. District Attorney, William E. Parke, too, said that unless additional evidence is found there will be no basis for holding Rogers and Kelley after the inquest.

EVELYN HOEY'S FATHER UNDER CARE OF DOCTOR
NEW YORK, Sept. 15. (AP)—Betty Starbuck, mother of the late Evelyn Hoey, said today Henry J. Hoey, father of the dead girl, had "collapsed" and was under a physician's care.

"He has been without sleep for over 50 hours," Miss Starbuck said at the Hoey's Manhattan apartment.

COURTS TO DECIDE FATE OF RAILROAD

Report of Key West System, Wrecked by Storm, Nearly Ready.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)
JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 15. It will be for the courts to determine whether the storm-wrecked Overseas railroad between Miami and the little island city of Key West is to be repaired or abandoned.

Scott M. Loftin, of Jacksonville, co-receiver of the Florida East Coast railway, which operates the Overseas system, said he and the other receiver, William R. Keenan, of New York, are "mere agents of the court," and without authority to make the decision.

People the country over called the Overseas railway an "eighth wonder" when Henry Flagler built it. It cost $26,000,000, and required seven years and nine months to build.

A complete report of the Labor Day hurricane damage to the line across the Florida keys will be filed "very shortly" with United States District Judge Louis W. Strum, of Jacksonville, Loftin said.

Meanwhile, the car ferry service connecting the island of Cuba with the United States will be resumed, the receiver announced, but its point of origin will be on the mainland instead of at the isolated Key West.

"It will operate from a point somewhere in the vicinity of Miami," Loftin said. "We cannot say at this time exactly where."

MALE HORMONES MADE CHEMICALLY

Synthesis Permits Experimentation With Rejuvenation.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15. (AP)—An epochal discovery for experimental medicine, the chemical synthesis of a new male sex hormone, 25 to 50 times more powerful than any now medically available, was announced today by Dr. L. Ruzicka, of Zurich, Switzerland, through the American Chemical Society.

The artificial manufacture means that for the first time medicine can now test completely the theories of rejuvenation and delay of aging which created their first furor with monkey and goat glands.

After the gland flare-up came chemical extraction of the hormones they produced. But neither glands nor hormones were very satisfactory, partly because there were never enough of either available.

Synthesis means these male hormones can be manufactured in unlimited quantities. That is what the experimenters have been waiting for because the restricted hormones hitherto available showed real benefits.

The benefits were more important than those of popular imagination. There were not so much direct effects on sex as preservation of mental powers and general health after the waning time.

Medical experience indicates human beings need a lot of the hormones.

FAIR, WARM WEATHER FORECAST FOR TODAY

It all depended upon where you were yesterday for a test of how hot it was. If you caught the vagrant breezes which were flitting around here and there, tempering the sun's rays, then it wasn't so hot. If you didn't, it was hotter.

Officially, the thermometer hit 89 degrees at Candler field observatory at 4:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The forecast for today is fair and warm, with those same little breezes playing about.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15. (AP)—Angered because she had started separation proceedings, Detective Daniel Sullivan, 42, shot and killed his wife today, police said, and seriously wounded his 14-year-old daughter.

Sullivan, a veteran of 18 years on the police force, was held without bail on a homicide charge.

Deputy Chief John J. Ryan said Sullivan admitted fatally shooting his wife, Helen, 38, and wounding his daughter, Evelyn, one of five children, in their Brooklyn home.

Ever mindful of feminine needs, Rich's has brought for her inspection an unprecedented collection of the finest mink coats obtainable, the furs being valued at $50,000. Fashioned of luxurious eastern mink—that aristocrat of all furs—that represent the latest modes in fur styling, and from these Atlanta women may choose the designs best suited to their types and figures. Alterations and changes will gladly be made, thus combining all the particular features that one desires in a single design. In addition, there is a huge collection of uncut mink pelts in order that the most fastidious may even select the skins from which her coat is made.

The display features particularly the formal full-length coat that is so well adapted to soft, pliable, eastern mink. But for younger figures whose preference runs to the sports type of clothes, there are many of the popular and becoming swagger line. The luxurious collars, which mildly will find most flattering, follow the smart cape design or give the new draped effect. Sleeves, too, offer a striking new note, with the fullness concentrated at the elbow and ending in a close-fitting cuff. Shoulders adhere strictly to the dolman line, which insures perfect fit and entirely eliminates that bungle-like look.

Noticeable to those who know fine furs is the high lustre of the mink, indicative of the uniform high grade, and the perfect matching of the skins, however intricate the detail of workmanship. Rich's fur stylists are always on hand to assist and advise in the matter of choosing and assembling the new details into one's exclusive model, and back of the finished garment is Rich's impregnable guarantee of satisfaction. Comforting, too, is the price list which covers a wide range within the proper limits.

Every day this week there is a continuous showing of the coat collection in the fur department on Rich's third floor.

PRESIDENT AND PECORA DISCUSS PHONE PROBE

New Yorker Asked To Direct Investigation Ordered by Senate.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 15. (AP)—President, Roosevelt conferred again today with Ferdinand Pecora, New York supreme court justice, on the possibility of Pecora's directing the investigation of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company ordered by the senate, but a decision was again deferred.

Pecora indicated he intended to stand for renomination and re-election this fall. There is no doubt of democratic support. Likewise there is no doubt of a keen interest by Pecora in the telephone inquiry about to be started.

Mr. Roosevelt met this afternoon with the vestrymen of the St. James Episcopal church in which he is a senior warden. Discussion was on dedication of a tablet to the first settlers of Hyde Park next Sunday.

Apparently watching closely the troubled European situation and the negotiations over wage scale in the mining industry, the President with help from New York state yesterday visiting public works projects Mr. Roosevelt was up early today and motored to church with Mrs. Roosevelt and his mother.

Mr. Roosevelt plans to remain here for another week.

LOVE FLYER LATE

New Delay May Cause
Pombo To Miss Sweetheart.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 15. (AP)—Juan Tenorio Pombo, 22-year-old Spanish flyer, today added an unintentional trans-continental flight to his romantic air-pilgrimage in search of a bride.

He left Vera Cruz at 7:35 this morning, intending to fly to Mexico City, where Senorita Maria Elena Rivero, his sweetheart, expected him about 9:30.

Heavy clouds over the mountains caused him to lose his way and he flew 150 miles to the south, landing at San Marcos, state of Guerrero. From there he flew on to Acapulco on the Pacific coast, completing a transcontinental flight.

The delay may cost him dearly. Senorita Rivero, who anxiously awaited him today, had planned to leave tomorrow for Spain. If she does, Pombo's 4 1/2 month trip from Santander, Spain, a trans-Atlantic hop, a crackup and long weeks in a Costa Rican hospital recovering from an appendicitis operation, might prove in vain.

Interprets Development of Constitution

DEAN RAIMUNDO DE OVIES.

Constitution Is Elastic Document, Procathedral Congregation Told

(Editor's Note: The Constitution this morning presents the 35th of a series of features dealing with Atlanta ministers and their services. Other stories and pictures of pastors in their pulpits will be given on succeeding Mondays.)

"The Constitution of the United States was not written, or peacefully adopted, by a group of demigods of impeccable virtue and disinterestedness," Dean Raimundo de Ovies, of the Pro-Cathedral of St. Philip, said in his sermon yesterday.

He said, in part: "The king," in our text, represents the "constituted authority," which all good citizens respect, in whatever form of government.

In America we have not "simon-pure democracy," but a constitutional democracy within the republic. The basis of authority is what we know as "the constitution."

Right now, there is much loose talk, and a lot of nonsense written, about the constitution on the part of both its ardent supporters and its "enemies," and all because of ignorance of its inception and character.

The constitution was not written, or peacefully adopted, by a group of demigods of impeccable virtue and disinterestedness. It was, on the contrary, forged in the heat of bitter sectional controversy. Even General Washington, in appealing for its adoption, admitted its imperfections and pleaded for its passage on the grounds that necessary or desirable amendments could be made later on. It was finally accepted by a slender margin; and in the very first session of the first congress ten amendments were ratified. There have been others since. Do you know how many?

At any rate, one fact stands out clearly—the constitution is subject to amendment—but constitutionally!

This constitution alone made a "federal" government at all possible. The one document both safeguarded colonial (state's) rights and permitted centralization. Thus, it is not strange that both sides of the "constitutional controversy" appeal to the constitution itself for justification.

It is, with the exception only of Magna Charta, the world's greatest contribution to human liberty. It is the cornerstone of the American tradition and our surest safeguard of human rights. It symbolizes and crystallizes our traditional heritage. It enables us to continue to be a free people, because it preserves an Anglo-Saxon background of individual liberty while, at the same time, possessing sufficient elasticity and life for changing application with the ever-changing social order. It is no "dead letter!"

Amendments may become necessary in the future, as they have in the past; but to "change the constitution" in the sense of substituting something else, or a wholesale abandoning, can mean only anarchy, or, at the least, a government so foreign as to be no longer American.

"In God We Trust," and "The voice of the people is the voice of God," are no idle words. They are for Americans God's word in a modern application, and the spirit of perhaps the world's most remarkable document, whose essential creed is: "Honor all men, love the brotherhood, fear God, honor the constituted authority."

"Let all things be done in decency, and in order!"

PERSHING HONORED

Frenchmen Pin Medal and SAINT MIHIEL, France, Sept. 15.—General John J. Pershing received a medal today from grateful Saint Mihiel citizens as they planted an oak tree in his honor and renewed expressions of gratitude for their deliverance from the Germans 17 years ago.

Planting of the "Pershing oak" honored the former American commander on his 75th birthday anniversary although this actually occurred on Friday.

A banquet at which speakers called Pershing "the American LaFayette" was followed by a parade to the railroad station, where the oak tree was planted.

DOTTED LINE HONEYMOON

By JOSEPH McCORD

INSTALLMENT I.

Virgie Blake, second in command of the cigar counter in the Hotel Raynear's imposing lobby, was studying the profile of a guest who stood near one of the large windows.

The man lounged with his arms across the back of a chair, gazing moodily into the street where sheets of driving rain marched under a leaden sky. An unlighted pipe was clamped between his teeth.

Virgie had approved of this stranger the first time he had passed the stand. It must have been nearly a week ago. She liked his broad shoulders, the restless eyes under their straight brows, the lean face bronzed by long out-of-doors exposure. His lower jaw was heavy, a trifle pugnaucious. An attractive carelessness marked his general appearance; it was evidenced by the unruly thatch of crisp dark hair, and in the suit of rough gray tweeds. Yet there was an air of strength in all the man's leisurely movements. He gave an impression that he might act with disconcerting swiftness if need be.

Virgie Blake entered none of these detailed specifications in her mental catalogue. It was not her way of describing a man who appealed to her. She had decided pleasantly and promptly that there was "something about him." And let it go at that.

Not quite, for he had taken occasion to glide over to the desk and make a private investigation the first time she saw this guest asking for his key and letters.

"Oh, Eddie, darling..." Virgie smiled persuasively at the room clerk on duty.

"The one in the gray suit?" Eddie Sawyer nodded in the direction of the bank of elevators.

"Th-h-h-h."

"Forty-sixty-one..." Sawyer's forefinger traveled down the vertical card file near his elbow. "The man is Cutter—L. H.—from Montreal."

"I do not. Sounds like a butcher or tiler. You'll know long before I do."

"Thanks."

"Not at all. Is he the day's particular thrill?"

"Bye, Eddie."

Miss Blake's crimson lips curved in a smile of anticipation today when she observed "1481" turn wearily from the rain-streaked window and stroll directly toward the cigars.

"Smoking tobacco," he suggested affably, resting his arms on the display case. There was a leisurely quality in his voice, too. Very nearly a drawl.

"That brand, please..." Mr. Cutter.

"I wish I knew." A faint flicker of amusement showed in the dark eyes of the saleswoman as she noted the man's long wavy hair and water here. He tapped idly with the bowl of his briar against the glass. "I've a notion I'd like to try something different..." today.

Virgie Blake had her moments of intuition. Ordinarily, she would have attempted an adroit reply. Something from her stock of ready "come-backs" that the customer might translate easily as a willingness on her part to continue the conversation to more interesting lengths. Instead, her coral-tipped fingers deftly investigated the set waves of her raven hair. Her long lashes, their richness abetted by a patient application of mascara, screened the interested regard of her alert eyes.

"We have everything..." almost. Virgie matched Mr. Cutter's drawl with unintentional perfection.

"You seem to," was the quick admission. Again that little flicker in her eyes. He turned them hastily to the next row of merchandise that filled the wall cabinets at the rear of the booth. "Oh, well..." I may as well stick with the old reliable," he pointed with the stem of his pipe.

"One of these, you mean?" Coolness tinged Miss Blake's voice. The customer's words roused a puzzled suspicion in her mind. Maybe he was trying to get fresh.

"No, ma'am. The next can. That's it." Cutter's voice and eyes were devoid of all guile.

The buyer lingered to open the can. He crowded tobacco into his pipe bowl with practiced care.

"Do you think it's ever going to stop raining?" Virgie ventured for sympathy. "You know this sort of day fairly gives me the jitters." Her voice displayed a confidential note. She awaited nearer, in a grateful pose. "Does it make you feel that way, too?"

"It's not... conducive to... frenzied... enthusiasm." The words were accented by swift puffs of air from his pursed lips. He flipped away his burnt match and turned his gaze to travel across the lobby. "One really should find something to do on a day like this," he said. He nodded in the direction of a small, glass-enclosed office not far away. "I should go over and annoy your stenographer a bit. She doesn't seem any too busy."

Something in the tone of his voice caused Virgie to look in the same direction. She attempted a mysterious smile, as she asked the unexpected question, "Are you... a sailor?"

"No... why?" Cutter did not turn his head as he asked it.

"Then you won't get very far..." with her.

"I was only thinking of letters. Doesn't she take dictation?"

"Sure! She's a wif. Sweet kid... but damn, I was just trying to give you a tip, that's all." Virgie made the explanation a trifle uncomfortably. She was dumb to pull that one. But it was too late now. Her new friend was plainly interested.

"I'm afraid I don't get it," he admitted, taking his pipe from his mouth. "You're a long way from salt water here. Should I dash over and tell her the fleet's in?"

"Don't be like that! I mean she almost never gives a customer a tumble. You know. As long as they stick to their home work, she let 'em think they're giving her a big moment. If they drop a stitch. You know what I mean. She's that way."

"I'm... mm."

Cutter continued to stare at the stenographer as if it were the first time he had chance to observe her. Very little more than her head and shoulders were visible through the glass panel. The glow from a shaded desk lamp shone warmly on her cinnamon-brown hair, a swirling bob of shining waves that covered the small bowed head. Apparently, she was reading. And deeply absorbed—to judge by the half-parted lips of her demure mouth. Large horn-rimmed spectacles gave an almost grotesque look to her oval face.

"Pretty hair," Cutter observed reflectively around the stem of his pipe. He might have been speaking his thoughts aloud.

"Gorgeous," Virgie agreed, with commendable enthusiasm. "She's an awfully cute little somebody. That's why it's a pity she's an oil can, sort of."

"Don't you mean bookworm? I've noticed that she's quite a reader."

"That's a part of it," Virgie was relaxing into a more familiar role now. "It's like I was telling you, Mr. Cutter. I'm not knocking her. She's too sweet. I mean it. It's just that she never has much to say to anybody... no, I mean, you know. But let somebody else giving her the low-down on Europe, Irup or Skirup... And will she come to! Perfect yen for geography places."

"Sort of a Burton Holmes complex?"

SALLY'S SALLIES

"YOU DON'T TELL ME!"

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Farley, Ph.D.

"Because sewer gas has a bad odor, many people believe that typhoid fever and many other diseases may be contracted by breathing it. The truth is that this gas is not responsible for any diseases, for disease germs which are found in sewage are not carried through the air. The bad odor is the result of putrefaction in the sewage, and this process helps purify the sewage."

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

STORY OF THE POSTMAN.

I—Long, Long Ago.

(Editor's Note—Today Uncle Ray writes a series of tales in the form of letters and postmen through the ages. Besides the great interest of the subject, there should be special help for pupils taking history. The stories may prove useful as topics for classes in ancient, medieval and modern history.)

"Will the postman bring a letter?"

Millions of persons ask that question each day, either aloud or speaking to themselves. They want to hear from dear friends, who may live hundreds or even thousands of miles away.

In Egypt people wrote on a kind of paper made from reeds which grew in and near the Nile river. For a pen the writer or "scribe" used a reed cut sharp at one end. Ink was made by mixing soot with water and gummy juices of plants.

The common custom in Babylon was to use sheets or slabs of clay. Instead of paper. Sharp sticks, or pieces of metal, were pressed into the soft clay to make the writing.

An excellent postal system grew up in ancient Persia. Mounted men, sometimes riding on mules or camels, took mail from place to place. There were stations along the routes where they could change mounts, or hand the mail to other riders. The letters were written on clay tablets, or were scratched on pieces of bronze.

One king who helped build up the Persian mail service was named Cyrus. He wanted to send messages quickly to army officers in all parts of his vast empire.

Charming College Graduates Engage In Creditable and Amazing Pursuits

By Sally Forth.

WHILE debutantes are getting in training for the beginning of their social festivities and the sub-herb contingent is embarking upon college careers, Sally took it upon herself to ascertain what those ambitious young Atlantans, who have already bound or framed their "sheepskins" are planning to do during the coming year. She found that their latest pursuits are both creditable and amazing. Most of those Sally interviewed are not satisfied with stopping at a college education, and are delving into the particular fields of knowledge that they have pursued.

Dorothea Blackhear, blondly charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Blackhear, having received her bachelor of arts at Agnes Scott College, will further her education by attending business school in Atlanta, and at the same time, taking a correspondence course in interior decorating at the New York School of Interior Decorating. Dorothea has a remarkable knack for style and colors, and with a business course to her credit, she will certainly have a well-rounded intelligence.

Laura Whitner received her degree in science last June with majors in biology and chemistry at Agnes Scott. It is hard to believe that a girl elected May queen in high school and college would be interested in scientific research. But Laura is so much so that she has accepted an opportunity to study bacteriology under Dr. Roy R. Kraske at Emory University.

Mary Bach, attractive daughter of Colonel and Mrs. C. A. Bach, attended school in Washington, D. C., and finished with a degree in Journalism at the University of Georgia. Mary hasn't made quite definite plans for the entire year because, just at present, she is too busy keeping house while her mother is out of town. While at the university, Mary was accorded the high honor of leading the military band, one of the school's prized and highest social honors, so there is no doubt that with her beauty and brains she will be successful in whatever she may undertake.

Betty Spalding, who was among the popular Atlantans graduating from Randolph-Macon, in Virginia, this spring, will be an attractive addition to the Debutante Club for the coming season. Betty King, another charming Atlantian, who graduated in pre-med at the University of Georgia, is enrolled in a grady hospital, where she will take a technician's course.

Jule McClatchey had hardly graduated from Agnes Scott when she was offered a position as a teacher in the Lovett school, and begins her work today. There are so many others, who have college degrees to their credit, that Sally couldn't possibly reveal all of their future pastimes, but she must admit that she was more than satisfied with what her search revealed.

ELINOR SMITH, blond and attractive daughter of the W. R. C. Smiths, certainly has an eye for the future when it comes to selecting something alive for the house. When she was in the redwood forests of California she acquired six redwood burls to bring home for herself and her friends. These burls form upon the trunks of redwoods, but not until the trees are at least 50 years old.

If placed in water and carefully cared for, they will eventually grow into trees themselves. So perhaps, several generations from now, there will be redwood burls in Atlanta. Among other purchases Elinor made was a handsome piece of hand-woven Scotch tweed from Canada, that she intends to have made into a coat; and a varicolored Chinese kimono from Chinatown in Los Angeles.

MARGY HELVENSTON had everything packed last week to return to school at Florida State Women's College down in Tallahassee. In fact her railroad ticket was bought and she was bidding her friends good-bye. Margy is a very popular figure with F. W. C.'s student body, you know, and this year she takes her place among its dignified seniors. But the very day she was scheduled to leave for school, Margy was stricken suddenly with a pain in her side. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Hastings, ordered an examination. The doctor, in turn, ordered an operation, for the pain proved to be caused by an acute attack of appendicitis.

So Margy was rushed to the Crawford Long hospital, where the offending appendix was quickly eliminated. Now she is convalescing. Sally is delighted to inform you, and will soon be able to use her ticket to Tallahassee. But she has been sorely missed from those exciting first days of school, especially by members of the senior class.

Georgia Roofing Supply Co. Offers Flintkote for Added Home Protection

INSULATION VALUE ALSO IS STRESSED

Roofs Inspected and Estimates Provided Without Cost to Owners.

The Georgia Roofing Supply Company, 52-72 Mangum street, N. W., reports a heavy increase in business during the last 90 days—a gain directly attributable to the fact home and other property owners are taking advantage of the exceedingly low existing prices offered by this company.

The Georgia Roofing Supply Company, in keeping with its policy of giving to the home owner the utmost care and service as well as low prices, further is offering to its customers the widely and favorably known line of Flintkote roofing materials at no extra cost.

A new Flintkote roof, applied by the Georgia Roofing Supply Company, brings both beauty and protection to the home, declares F. M. Petet, a representative of the company. Flintkote, he points out, can be applied right over the old roof, without dirt, damage or delay, and adds insulation value as well as saving, giving to the home a better roof with a durability far above the average.

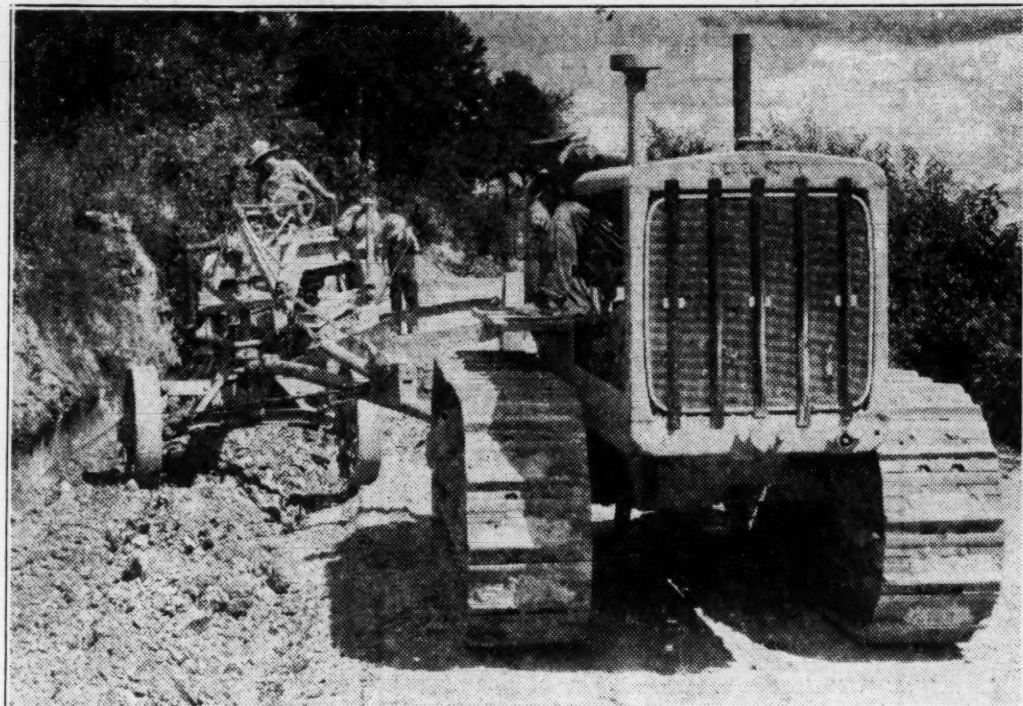

"An important—perhaps the most important—material possession in life," says Mr. Petet, "is the home, and that's a responsibility to your family, your neighborhood and yourself. A new Flintkote roof will renew the joy and pride of home ownership."

With winter approaching, with its rain, sleet and snow, Mr. Petet points out, serious consideration should be given to the roof, since neither time nor weather makes allowances for man or roof. Every day, every hour, he adds, the elements are exacting their toll, trying to find a flaw or weakness in the roof. Only a roof of the highest quality can resist these onslaughts and insure lasting protection.

The Georgia Roofing Supply Company, Mr. Petet asserts, will apply a Flintkote roof without a penny down, and with payments as low as $5.11 a month on terms ranging from one to three years.

The company, with its 10 sales representatives, he states, will gladly inspect the roofs on any Atlanta home and provide, without obligation, an

'Caterpillar' Equipment Is Preference Of Polk County's Board of Commissioners

Here a crew of Polk county's road maintenance men are shown grading a hillside road with the powerful, efficient and economical "Caterpillar" Diesel equipment purchased from Yancey Brothers, Inc., 634 Whitehall street, S. W. Polk county's commissioners have recently purchased two new units to add to one in use for the past two years.

Confirmed believers in the economic value of "Caterpillar" Diesel equipment for all types of road work, the Board of Commissioners of Polk county in recent weeks has increased its highway maintenance machinery by the purchase of two Diesel-40 tractors and two "Caterpillar" 10-foot graders. This equipment was purchased from Yancey Brothers, Inc., 635 Whitehall street, S. W.

The Polk county commissioners two years ago bought a Diesel-50 tractor, together with one 10-foot grader, from Yancey Brothers, Inc., and immediately became impressed with the efficiency, the economy and the dependability estimate on the cost of a new roof. Home owners are invited to call and avail themselves of this splendid service.

of this up-to-the-minute road equipment. So favorably impressed were they that it was without the slightest hesitancy that they determined this year up on the purchase of the two "Caterpillar" and Diesel units.

The roads and highways of Polk county, declares Dr. T. E. McBryde of Rockmart, chairman of the county board, are among the best in the entire state of Georgia. With the use of "Caterpillar" and Diesel road machinery and equipment, efficiently handled, the task of keeping these thoroughfares in perfect condition is easily done with a minimum of cost. Its use, Dr. McBryde points out, has saved the county many thousands of dollars that previously was spent on less efficient machinery.

Besides Dr. McBryde, the Polk county board is composed of T. W. Schillestott, of Cedar town, clerk; Captain H. M. Isbell, of Cedar town; warden; D. K. Woodward, of Cedar town; and W. Wallis Brumby, of Cedar town, commissioners.

Countless other Georgia counties have long decided upon "Caterpillar" equipment as the answer to their road maintenance problems, and are using it with a resultant saving in maintenance costs. The commissioners of these counties are unanimous in their praise of this modern equipment, because of its power, stamina, low operating cost and low upkeep.

This same preference is reflected in the preponderant selection of "Caterpillar" for use on many of the nation's largest construction jobs. For example, at Tiger Dam and the Grafton and Kanawha Dam project in West Virginia, equipment is 100 per cent "Caterpillar." In the Los Angeles Metropolitan Water District, there are 36 "Caterpillars" in use, as compared to 9 other makes. The count on other major jobs: Muskingum Valley (Ohio) 55 "Caterpillars" to 2 others; Fort Peck (Montana), 105 "Caterpillars" to 5 others; All-American (Arizona), 21 to 3; Sutherland Reservoir (Nebraska), 17 to 4; and Grand Coulee (Columbia river) 36 to 5.

Goodloe Yancey, president of Yancey Brothers, Inc., invites Georgia city and county officials, as well as agriculturists, to visit the company's Atlanta headquarters and to investigate the amazing advantages of "Caterpillar" and Diesel equipment for their work. "When 'Caterpillar' is used," he adds, "it is well worth anyone's time to investigate it."

GUTHMAN INSURES ENVELOPE QUALITY

Atlanta Manufacturer Combines Fineness and Sturdiness in Products.

"Everywhere you go these days," says Sig Guthman, president of the Atlanta Envelope Company, "you run into a discussion of football. I wonder if many business men ever consider that the average envelope is called upon to take quite a bit of punishment itself as it is 'tackled' by mail clerks and banged around in the course of its journey, just as a ball carrier is."

The outstanding halfback of the envelope industry, Mr. Guthman continues, "not only can find a hole or a weak spot in the envelope, but he is able to 'take it.' And so, too, with an envelope, it's not enough for that envelope to look flashy; it's got to be able to withstand the gaff of the mails. This means, naturally, that the envelope must be made right, with tight-fitting corners, fresh gum on the flaps, and so on. This, of course, is one of the big advantages possessed by a large manufacturer such as the Atlanta Envelope Company. The modern envelope-making machinery—a huge battery of it—combines with skilled, experienced craftsmen to turn out envelopes that have made a name for themselves throughout the country."

Evidence of the quality of "Atlanta-made" envelopes and their suitability for various purposes reaches Mr. Guthman's offices at 502 Stewart avenue, S. W., every day. Only recently, Mr. Guthman relates, the general manager of one of the largest concerns in Dallas, Texas, wrote: "We do know this, however, that when Guthman completes a job for us, it is right, and when he packs it and ships it, it is all right. We want to take occasion to congratulate your shipping department because many superlatives have been commented on this excellent service."

Ship-Ahoy Restaurant Plans Celebration Of First Anniversary Thursday, Sept. 19

Already a familiar Atlanta landmark and one of the city's most popular dining places, the Ship-Ahoy Restaurant Thursday will celebrate its first anniversary of operation. The photo above shows a part of the interior of this beautiful restaurant, tastefully decorated in marine motif.

As a means of expressing, in a measure, its gratitude for the reception and patronage it has enjoyed during the past year, the Ship-Ahoy, one of Atlanta's finest and most popular dining places, has fixed Thursday, September 19, for the observance of its first anniversary.

James T. Pantages, manager of the Ship-Ahoy, announces special plans are nearing completion for the anniversary event, and that the celebration will be one long to be remembered. Souvenirs and favors, he states, will be presented to all diners. The highlight of the anniversary, it is stated, will be Thursday evening—an evening set aside when a special anniversary dinner will be served, and when dancing will be featured in the night club fashion. For this event, as at all other times, the justly popular Ship-Ahoy orchestra will provide a program of snappy dance music, and special floor presentations will be the order of the evening.

In the Ship-Ahoy, the distinctive marine "atmosphere," as expressed in its decorations, gives one the feeling of dining beneath the canopy of a starboard may be seen the open, starboard sea. One hears, in the distance, the muffled blast of a warning fog horn, and close at hand may hear the rustle and the swishing and the slapping of the waves against ship'sides. Ship's lanterns and lifebuoys, the tall mast with its dangling ropes and ladders, white funnels, the skipper's wheel and scores of other reminders of life at sea are there, and the smart marine uniforms of the floormen and waitresses lend an added salt water touch to the scene.

The Ship-Ahoy, during its initial year of operation, has enjoyed a tremendous and increasing popularity among discriminating diners who insist upon the finest foods, properly prepared and served. Quality is its watchword, and through careful personal selection of all meats, seafoods and other foods which pass through its kitchen, the Ship-Ahoy has won and maintained the confidence of thousands of patrons.

This selection is particularly strongly stressed in the buying of steaks, chops and other meats, and seafood, which, together with delectable Chinese dishes, are the Ship-Ahoy's featured specialties.

The Ship-Ahoy takes special pride in its kitchen, where the most modern equipment insures the utmost in sanitation and cleanliness. Its chef is a man of many years of thorough experience, selected for his versatility in the preparation of all menu specialties. All Chinese dishes are prepared by a native Chinese chef.

Atlantans are invited to set aside Thursday night and to attend the Ship-Ahoy's anniversary celebration—and to enjoy an unusual dinner and dancing.

DAILY SHORT STORY

SOUP STRATEGY

Lynn Planned to Take the Traditional Route to a Man's Heart, But Encountered a Detour.

By LAUREL O'CONNOR.

When Lynn Woolcott reached the Midget cafe, she was wet, tired, hungry and blue as the carbons sheets she so recently typed and laid upon Judge Gibbons' desk.

She was a girl in a dark-blue linen suit. She had moon-gold hair curling under a Breton sailor and lips the shade of crushed strawberries. She stood her dripping umbrella in the rack, reached for a tray and moved slowly in the line toward the steam counter.

Lynn looked up and nearly dropped her tray. It was the man across the hall. Every morning, now that it was getting warm, weather and the occupants of the forty-second floor left their doors open. Lynn at her keyboard coprin' briefs saw him come ed his empty dishes. "Best meal I ever ate," he grinned. "Gosh, you look sweet in an apron. If you gals only knew how men go for the old-fashioned in women." ***

Lynn crushed out her cigarette stub on her saucer. She said in a small voice, her blue eyes miserable, "I thought I could get away with it but I can't. You might as well know.
I decided you. I can't cook. Not even an egg. That was canned soup and half a loaf of bread and everything else."

"You know it," he said.
"You mean you let me go on on thinking I was putting it over without—How?"

"Oh, it wasn't so hard to guess.
That phone call for one thing. I put two and two together. And I heard you opening cans."

"Oh," Lynn said.
"And even I know," went on Mr.
Biggers. "That to make bean soup you should soak the beans overnight and let 'em cook over a low fire on the back of a cookstove for hours."

"But I didn't have—"
"You didn't have time. No, of course, you didn't. When would a business girl have time to learn to cook? Now if you were married—"

Lynn leaned toward him eagerly.
"If I were married?" she asked, softly.
He went on: "If you were married to the right man, of course—you'd have lots of time to learn how to make bean soup. You could devote your life to it."

Lynn's eyes were bright. "I suppose you should, too. But—where's the right man?"

Mr. Biggers laughed gently. "That's your problem, my dear. Now you take my wife, for instance. She Lynn's eyes were brighter now, with astonishment. "Your wife?" she asked.

"Yes, my wife," Biggers answered.
"She's a lovely woman—out of town right now. Now you take her, for instance. I did over her mouth like a guilty child, feeling the burning color creep upward and wishing she would drop through the cement floor.
End—But of course he had."

The young man turned an amused face to her. "That's all with me," he said. "Then his expression changed to a look of interest. 'Say, I'm a little why—surely only you look different with your hat on. You're old Josh's secretary.'"

Lynn said in confusion, "Oh, no,
I mean I didn't mean—I don't want to have. You a stranger and everything.
What must you think—"

"I think it's the most adorable spontaneous, sincere invitation I ever heard," he said. "Don't spoil it, please."
Lynn looked at her watch. Six fifteen. She'd at it. She said, "All right, I'll come. Listen, I'll make a phone call. Excuse me first."

Upstairs at the phone desk Lynn dialed feverishly.
"Hello, Oh Silly! Thank goodness you're home. Listen, I'll make a phone call. Excuse me first. I'll take some money out of the china cabinet and go out and buy some beans and some crackers and something for the soup. I'll be back in half an hour. Silly, it's terribly important."

Her roommate's voice came over the wire in a dazed and dazed way. "All right—Babe, are you sure you're all right? Where are you? What happened? I mean something wonderful. I'll tell you about it later.
I'm bringing a man home."

"Yeah? I gathered the fleet must be in a daze, couldn't pick up the navy.
Thought you were staying down tonight. It's nearly 6:30. I gotta get some clothes on. The big moment's due and anyway there's nothing on."

"Glad aim wait. The delicatessen has had everything. Oh, please.
He's nice. Silly. Awfully nice."
The up tempo looked cheerful with the new chintz pillows on the studio couch, the flowers from Sylvia's night before dinner dance, the glow from not only a lamp, the rain gazing against the panes. And drawn up before the lighted gas grate the butterfly table set for two with peasant crochery on red and white fringed mats.

Mr. Biggers replete with five portions of soup beneath his vest, stick-ed to the sofa.

CHARLES E. BELL.

C. E. Bell, South Carolinian,

Promoted by Railroad to Passenger Supervision.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 15.—Charles R. Capps, chief traffic officer of the Seaboard Air Line railway, today announced the appointment of Charles E. Bell as passenger traffic manager, with headquarters at Norfolk, Vir-

For over 10 years Mr. Bell has been superintendent of the Seaboard passenger department which, under his direction, has become an outstanding feature of modern railroad travel.
His formula for the success of this important phase of railroading is to play the part of host to Seaboard passengers in the same bountiful and cordial manner as the old-time southern gentleman of ante-bel-lun days.

Mr. Bell is a native of South Carolina and has a wide acquaintance among the regular winter visitors to Florida and the south, as well as with railroad executives and businessmen
